

Squirrels eat insects, roots, tree bark,
leaves and acorns.

Squirrels gather and save a lot of their food year round. When autumn time comes is when they spend a lot of time gathering food. Then they bury their food before winter comes. They hibernate through the winter and then when winter is over then they wake up and go out to look for the food they buried.

When squirrels are born they are blind. When they are adults they have very good eye sight. Baby squirrels are called kittens.

Squirrels live in trees, holes of trunks or even in tree tops in abandon crow's nests.
